

ELDERS ARE OUR SUPERHEROES

Students showing off their artwork with Art Teacher, Julie Crowder

Students at the City of Richmond's William F. Fox Elementary School, completed an art assignment depicting a grandparent or an older adult in their life as a superhero.

The children read stories about older adults with exaggerated positive qualities, making the individuals seem magical and memorable. Then, each student chose their own inspiring older adult's superpower and created the masterpieces you see on display.

In the upcoming years, the number of adults age 65 and over will more than double in the Greater Richmond region. VCU Department of Gerontology and Senior Connections, The Capital Area Agency on Aging are pleased to be managing partners of a regional coalition helping to prepare our communities for the opportunities and challenges presented by the Age Wave.
